

ABSTRACT

A locating device, in particular a hand-held locating device, for detecting objects enclosed in a medium, having a housing 5 and at least one sensor system provided in a housing, as well as an opening penetrating the device. The opening in the measuring device and penetrating the device is illuminable by at least one light source provided in the measuring device.